

(Figure 2: Vein breccia from Omui mine (left). Fine dark chips of chalcedonic quartz are cemented by late stage sugary white quartz. Siliceous sinter displaying layered fossilized microbial mat near the bottom (right). Field of view is about 4 cm. Such sinter forms in pools at surface as hot spring fluids cool once they emerge from deep in the ground.)